

GLOBE-REPUBLIC.

Daily Edition.

DAILY WEATHER REPORT

FOR THIS LOCALITY, AS REPORTED BY J. D. BERRY, REPORTER FOR THE GLOBE-REPUBLIC.

| February 17, 1885 | Temp. | Wind | Weather |
|-------------------|-------|------|---------|
| 6:30 a. m. | 60° | SE | Fair |
| 9:30 a. m. | 65° | SE | Fair |
| 12:30 p. m. | 70° | SE | Fair |
| 3:30 p. m. | 75° | SE | Fair |
| 6:30 p. m. | 70° | SE | Fair |

CITY MATTERS.

The Midgots at the risk to-night will draw a big house.

Mr. R. M. Patton, of Dayton, was in the city yesterday.

Mr. Harry Van Sickle says it's "one of the funnest." A girl arrived at his home last night.

John H. Thomas, of this city, has just been granted letters patent on an apparatus for branding metal bars.

One week from tonight the Republican City Convention will be held in Black's Opera House, preceded by the Springfield Township Convention.

There will be a jug-bug-bank at Alpine rink, South Center street, tomorrow evening, Thursday, February 19, for the benefit of Wiley chapel. Admission ten cents.

Major Henry Harper, commanding the Ninth Battalion, O. N. G., with Colonel W. J. White and part of his staff, will inspect the Bushnell Guard, Co. A, Ninth Battalion, Friday evening next, February 20, in the armory, corner of Main and Center streets.

Broken rails on the C. C. & I. and I. B. & W. railroads (Ohio division) delayed the night express train on each road, the former until 5 a. m. and the latter until 5:40 a. m., through passengers taking the Springfield accommodation for Cincinnati. The heavy fall of snow has been the cause of some delay, but on the whole trains are doing well.

Joseph O'Brien and Miss Mollie Campion, of this city, were the attendants on the wedding of Mr. M. Redman, of Piquette, and Miss Lizzie Kavanagh, of Urbana, at which a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, Pat O'Brien, of this city, was one of the guests. Miss Campion and the Messrs. O'Brien are cousins of the bride.

The authorities of Loveland, where there was a big fire, for that village, recently have written here inquiring as to the "Rover" hand engine, it is for sale. The machine belonged to the company running it, and not to the city, and was disposed of several years ago, after doing first-class service here. The Lovelanders can take their pick of three steam fire engines we have, all in good condition.

Mrs. Nancy Baxter celebrated her one hundred birthday anniversary at the house of her daughter, Mrs. Cheney, in Mechanicsburg, Monday. She was born February 16, 1885, in Fairfield county, Conn. Among other exercises at the celebration was a recitation by Miss Eva Martin, formerly of this city. The family now living and present are of five generations. The family consists of the mother, seven living children, forty-two grandchildren, sixty-four great grandchildren, and five great great grandchildren, thirty-three of whom were present yesterday.

An affidavit was filed in Mayor's court yesterday against E. A. Steelman, charging him with obtaining money under false pretenses. It is alleged that he obtained $87.50 from W. G. Mayhugh on a note, on the representation that he had money in bank and held a large interest in the estate of Margaret Steelman, both of which statements are alleged to be untrue. Officer Biddle served a warrant last night, but found Steelman confined to his house, seriously ill. No day has been set for the hearing.

The class of Chinese conducted by some of the ladies in the First Presbyterian church was given an entertainment Monday evening, in the church parlors. Every Chinaman in Springfield, numbering fourteen at present, was there, and in addition two from Dayton and one from Chicago, the latter a wealthy, educated and Americanized silk merchant, who is here with a valuable stock of shawls, handkerchiefs, etc., imported from China. Called to order at eight o'clock, there were brief opening exercises, followed by a good supper, provided by the ladies. Thomas F. McGraw, senior, occupied an hour very pleasantly for all, with an exhibition of dissolving views, along a large stereoscope. This was very amusing and was also made instructive. The guests of the evening seemed to understand and certainly appreciated the efforts thus put forth in their behalf and were profuse with thanks, expressed in their own way. Among the ladies managing the affair were the Messrs. Torbert, Mrs. R. S. Thompson, Mrs. R. Q. King, Miss Jennie Reid, Miss Brown and others.

Small Blaze.
This morning at precisely six o'clock an alarm of fire was turned in from Box 27, located at the corner of East and Pleasant Sts., from which the alarm last Saturday morning was turned in at precisely the same time.

The fire this morning was found to be in a small one story brick house on Pleasant street near East. It has not been occupied for several weeks, and it is supposed caught fire from a fire in the cellar, probably built by tramps. The fire burned a small hole in the floor and this was all the damage. The house belonged to a lady named Butler.

In running to the fire the machinery came near going through a street car at the corner of Monroe and Limestone streets. The driver of the street car attempted to cross Monroe street instead of waiting at the North side. From the hook and ladder truck turned the corner the rear end just narrowly missed the mules attached to the car.

The Midgots.
Probably the most novel entertainment that has taken place at the skating rink was that given by little Ethel and Edna Taber, the "Midgots," of Providence, R. I. These little skaters are but five and eight years of age, and are certainly wonderful artists. They go through some of the most difficult evolutions performed by other skaters, and also have several of their own. They are "too cute for anything," and were received with great applause by the audience, which was exceptionally large considering the weather. A very difficult movement was performed by the older girl, who skated across the building several times on the front rollers, the back rollers being taken off.

They appear again this evening in different costume, and those who failed to see them last night should not miss this opportunity.

Neuralgia of the Face.

Capt. John O. Pearson, Miss, has been a most intense sufferer from facial neuralgia for over twenty years. He has had seventeen operations performed on the nerves—that is, had them divided, cut off from the bone from which they emerge. The neuralgia never did him any good; the most excruciating pain continued without the least interruption. He often wished for death to relieve him of the intolerable pain. The best physicians failed to relieve him. They finally advised him to consult Drs. Hartman & Miller, at the St. Charles Hotel, New Orleans, which he did. They prescribed PERUNA, and in less than a month was entirely relieved of the pain. Before consulting these doctors the least touch to any part of his face or nose would cause the most fearful pain, while now he can blow his nose and wipe his face without the least fear of pain. The captain is grateful beyond measure for this unexpected and successful result. Mrs. Elizabeth Kennerly, 8 Laurel street, New Orleans, has been one of the greatest sufferers from Neuralgia of the face during the past year that we have ever heard of. From morning to night, and from night to morning, there was constant, racking, tearing, burning pain, extending clear around her head and deep down through every muscle, tooth and bone in her face. No rest and no sleep. As physicians failed to relieve her, as well as all remedies. She was constantly in the most agonizing despair. She called on Dr. Hartman, who said the cause was chronic catarrh. He prescribed PERUNA for her and now her pain has left her. She feels like another person and can eat heartily and sleep soundly.

Mrs. C. J. Miles, Gallipolis, O., writes: "Dr. S. B. Hartman & Co., Columbus, O. My affliction has been rheumatism, located in the right arm and shoulder, for more than two years' standing, and after trying a great many remedies without any relief, I commenced the use of PERUNA, which, after using three bottles, found a decided change for the better. I commenced to use it and now feel entirely well."

Mrs. A. B. Lovejoy, Dadeville, Ala., writes: "I have a fine run on your PERUNA and MANALIN. Please send me a lot of books, 'The Ills of Life.'"

C. H. Berry was removed from the county jail this morning and left for Cincinnati, to call of Deputy United States Marshal R. F. Hayward, via the C. C. & I. railroad, at 5 a. m., on the night express, which was delayed until that hour. The 6 o'clock train took 55 of the witnesses, and twelve or fourteen went down by the 8 o'clock train. The trial is in progress today in the United States Court, and is likely to last two days or more.

Adjutant General's Report.

The annual report for 1884 of Adjutant General E. B. Finley is in print and advance copies have been received here. The past year has been the most active for the Ohio National Guard, in extent of service demanded of them, since 1877 and this report is of unusual interest to friends and members of the Guard and the public generally in the same degree. Large space is devoted to a recital of the success achieved by the brigade encampments held last summer for the first time, and pleasant mention is made of the First Brigade camp held in this city. General Finley says of it: "I am exceedingly gratified that it was so successful, heralding, as it did, a new era in military encampments in Ohio." Col. Botkin, commanding the brigade, says in his official report to the Governor: "I also recommend alternate brigade and regimental encampments." The Adjutant General suggests the leasing of grounds for permanent camping sites by divisions as well as brigades. The Cincinnati riots of last March are done up in fifteen pages, not including official reports of regimental and other commanders, report of the Fourth Regiment corps, etc. The Fourth is let "down and out" as easily as could have been expected, under the circumstances. The Champion City Guard is not mentioned separately in that connection. The Fifth Battery and Bushnell Guard come in for honorable mention.

Teachers' Meeting.

The Clark County Teachers' Association met in regular session at the Central building, Saturday, February 14. The meeting was called to order by President Mohler. The program consisted of the following topics: "School Government," by Prof. J. W. Freeman, of South Charleston; "Reading in our Public Schools," by Sept. W. S. Taylor, of Bethel township; "Physical Geography," by M. M. McCoukey, of Clifton.

The meeting throughout was manifestly the best yet held. The discussions were spirited and elicited feelings of interest. Superintendent Taylor's able paper, on "Reading in our Public Schools," met with a hearty approval by all present. There will be another meeting held at the same place on the second Saturday of March. The following named teachers were among the number present: The Messrs. Swartzbaugh, Shaffer, Boyd, Hayes, Sloan, Ellsworth, Gorman, Thompson, Messrs. J. W. Freeman, W. A. Twickell, Elmer Ocker, W. S. Taylor, C. B. Rogers, J. A. Hershey, A. C. Cowan, C. F. Bellentine, A. E. Taylor, A. C. Keeser, P. Lynch, B. Jenkins, R. O. Allen, Dr. Spilwing, Wm. Reese, C. C. House, C. F. Wragg, F. Davis, J. S. Merrill, L. McKibben, M. M. McCoukey, F. J. Jenkins, J. H. Harman, S. H. Neer, D. S. Snavely, B. D. Long, and others. The programme for the next meeting will be announced in due time; and an interesting one may be looked for.

Against Color-Line Balloting.

To the Editor of the Globe-Republic: I see from the Sunday's issue of the Globe-Republic that the executive committee has decided to have separate ballot-boxes for white and colored persons at all the voting-precincts on the evening of the 24th, when we elect delegates to the city convention.

As a voter from the Third ward, I wish publicly to enter my protest against this arrangement. The "down-South policy" of separate ballot-boxes will not work in an enlightened North and among intelligent people. Away, I say, with this rebel custom! Give the colored people their proportionate representation on the committee that nominates. Let the committee choose a proportionate number of colored voters in the ward, according to the present arrangement, and put all delegates to chosen, both colored and white, in the same ballot-box, and each man take his chance of being drawn. It is as fair for the colored as it is for the white, and why this new departure? We are just as apt to have too large a representation as too small; and the result either way will be fair. I oppose all color-line drawing at the ballot-box. If we are citizens let us take our chances as such, and not set up a howl for a separate ballot-box. I hope the executive committee will rescind this action in regard to separate ballot-boxes, as it is a bad precedent, and put all on a common basis. I think the colored people have a high enough sense of honor to trust their ballot in the same identical box with other voters of the ward. Wm. Mink.

BILL ARP'S VIEWS.

HOW ACCOUNTS OF THE OFFICERS OF TWO ARMIES DIFFER.

Gen. Grant's Article in The Century—William Preston Johnston's Account in the Same Number—Story About "Old Hickory."

[Bill Arr in Atlanta Constitution.]

"Men of Massachusetts, you have conquered everything else, now learn to conquer your prejudices. And now comes Gen. Grant at the last number and says that he is alive today he could say it to all of us for we are the slaves of prejudice. I was thinking about this while reading the last number of The Century. In the December number, Gen. Low Wallace wrote an account of the battle of Shiloh and I thought it was very fair and considerate, considering that he was a Federal general. I believed him to be sincere. And now comes Gen. Grant at the last number and says that he is alive today he could say it to all of us for we are the slaves of prejudice. I was thinking about this while reading the last number of The Century. In the December number, Gen. Low Wallace wrote an account of the battle of Shiloh and I thought it was very fair and considerate, considering that he was a Federal general. I believed him to be sincere. And now comes Gen. Grant at the last number and says that he is alive today he could say it to all of us for we are the slaves of prejudice. I was thinking about this while reading the last number of The Century. In the December number, Gen. Low Wallace wrote an account of the battle of Shiloh and I thought it was very fair and considerate, considering that he was a Federal general. I believed him to be sincere. And now comes Gen. Grant at the last number and says that he is alive today he could say it to all of us for we are the slaves of prejudice. I was thinking about this while reading the last number of The Century. In the December number, Gen. Low Wallace wrote an account of the battle of Shiloh and I thought it was very fair and considerate, considering that he was a Federal general. I believed him to be sincere. And now comes Gen. Grant at the last number and says that he is alive today he could say it to all of us for we are the slaves of prejudice. I was thinking about this while reading the last number of The Century. In the December number, Gen. Low Wallace wrote an account of the battle of Shiloh and I thought it was very fair and considerate, considering that he was a Federal general. I believed him to be sincere. And now comes Gen. Grant at the last number and says that he is alive today he could say it to all of us for we are the slaves of prejudice. I was thinking about this while reading the last number of The Century. In the December number, Gen. Low Wallace wrote an account of the battle of Shiloh and I thought it was very fair and considerate, considering that he was a Federal general. I believed him to be sincere. And now comes Gen. Grant at the last number and says that he is alive today he could say it to all of us for we are the slaves of prejudice. I was thinking about this while reading the last number of The Century. In the December number, Gen. Low Wallace wrote an account of the battle of Shiloh and I thought it was very fair and considerate, considering that he was a Federal general. I believed him to be sincere. And now comes Gen. Grant at the last number and says that he is alive today he could say it to all of us for we are the slaves of prejudice. I was thinking about this while reading the last number of The Century. In the December number, Gen. Low Wallace wrote an account of the battle of Shiloh and I thought it was very fair and considerate, considering that he was a Federal general. I believed him to be sincere. And now comes Gen. Grant at the last number and says that he is alive today he could say it to all of us for we are the slaves of prejudice. I was thinking about this while reading the last number of The Century. In the December number, Gen. Low Wallace wrote an account of the battle of Shiloh and I thought it was very fair and considerate, considering that he was a Federal general. I believed him to be sincere. And now comes Gen. Grant at the last number and says that he is alive today he could say it to all of us for we are the slaves of prejudice. I was thinking about this while reading the last number of The Century. In the December number, Gen. Low Wallace wrote an account of the battle of Shiloh and I thought it was very fair and considerate, considering that he was a Federal general. I believed him to be sincere. And now comes Gen. Grant at the last number and says that he is alive today he could say it to all of us for we are the slaves of prejudice. I was thinking about this while reading the last number of The Century. In the December number, Gen. Low Wallace wrote an account of the battle of Shiloh and I thought it was very fair and considerate, considering that he was a Federal general. I believed him to be sincere. And now comes Gen. Grant at the last number and says that he is alive today he could say it to all of us for we are the slaves of prejudice. I was thinking about this while reading the last number of The Century. In the December number, Gen. Low Wallace wrote an account of the battle of Shiloh and I thought it was very fair and considerate, considering that he was a Federal general. I believed him to be sincere. And now comes Gen. Grant at the last number and says that he is alive today he could say it to all of us for we are the slaves of prejudice. I was thinking about this while reading the last number of The Century. In the December number, Gen. Low Wallace wrote an account of the battle of Shiloh and I thought it was very fair and considerate, considering that he was a Federal general. I believed him to be sincere. And now comes Gen. Grant at the last number and says that he is alive today he could say it to all of us for we are the slaves of prejudice. I was thinking about this while reading the last number of The Century. In the December number, Gen. Low Wallace wrote an account of the battle of Shiloh and I thought it was very fair and considerate, considering that he was a Federal general. I believed him to be sincere. And now comes Gen. Grant at the last number and says that he is alive today he could say it to all of us for we are the slaves of prejudice. I was thinking about this while reading the last number of The Century. In the December number, Gen. Low Wallace wrote an account of the battle of Shiloh and I thought it was very fair and considerate, considering that he was a Federal general. I believed him to be sincere. And now comes Gen. Grant at the last number and says that he is alive today he could say it to all of us for we are the slaves of prejudice. I was thinking about this while reading the last number of The Century. In the December number, Gen. Low Wallace wrote an account of the battle of Shiloh and I thought it was very fair and considerate, considering that he was a Federal general. I believed him to be sincere. And now comes Gen. Grant at the last number and says that he is alive today he could say it to all of us for we are the slaves of prejudice. I was thinking about this while reading the last number of The Century. In the December number, Gen. Low Wallace wrote an account of the battle of Shiloh and I thought it was very fair and considerate, considering that he was a Federal general. I believed him to be sincere. And now comes Gen. Grant at the last number and says that he is alive today he could say it to all of us for we are the slaves of prejudice. I was thinking about this while reading the last number of The Century. In the December number, Gen. Low Wallace wrote an account of the battle of Shiloh and I thought it was very fair and considerate, considering that he was a Federal general. I believed him to be sincere. And now comes Gen. Grant at the last number and says that he is alive today he could say it to all of us for we are the slaves of prejudice. I was thinking about this while reading the last number of The Century. In the December number, Gen. Low Wallace wrote an account of the battle of Shiloh and I thought it was very fair and considerate, considering that he was a Federal general. I believed him to be sincere. And now comes Gen. Grant at the last number and says that he is alive today he could say it to all of us for we are the slaves of prejudice. I was thinking about this while reading the last number of The Century. In the December number, Gen. Low Wallace wrote an account of the battle of Shiloh and I thought it was very fair and considerate, considering that he was a Federal general. I believed him to be sincere. And now comes Gen. Grant at the last number and says that he is alive today he could say it to all of us for we are the slaves of prejudice. I was thinking about this while reading the last number of The Century. In the December number, Gen. Low Wallace wrote an account of the battle of Shiloh and I thought it was very fair and considerate, considering that he was a Federal general. I believed him to be sincere. And now comes Gen. Grant at the last number and says that he is alive today he could say it to all of us for we are the slaves of prejudice. I was thinking about this while reading the last number of The Century. In the December number, Gen. Low Wallace wrote an account of the battle of Shiloh and I thought it was very fair and considerate, considering that he was a Federal general. I believed him to be sincere. And now comes Gen. Grant at the last number and says that he is alive today he could say it to all of us for we are the slaves of prejudice. I was thinking about this while reading the last number of The Century. In the December number, Gen. Low Wallace wrote an account of the battle of Shiloh and I thought it was very fair and considerate, considering that he was a Federal general. I believed him to be sincere. And now comes Gen. Grant at the last number and says that he is alive today he could say it to all of us for we are the slaves of prejudice. I was thinking about this while reading the last number of The Century. In the December number, Gen. Low Wallace wrote an account of the battle of Shiloh and I thought it was very fair and considerate, considering that he was a Federal general. I believed him to be sincere. And now comes Gen. Grant at the last number and says that he is alive today he could say it to all of us for we are the slaves of prejudice. I was thinking about this while reading the last number of The Century. In the December number, Gen. Low Wallace wrote an account of the battle of Shiloh and I thought it was very fair and considerate, considering that he was a Federal general. I believed him to be sincere. And now comes Gen. Grant at the last number and says that he is alive today he could say it to all of us for we are the slaves of prejudice. I was thinking about this while reading the last number of The Century. In the December number, Gen. Low Wallace wrote an account of the battle of Shiloh and I thought it was very fair and considerate, considering that he was a Federal general. I believed him to be sincere. And now comes Gen. Grant at the last number and says that he is alive today he could say it to all of us for we are the slaves of prejudice. I was thinking about this while reading the last number of The Century. In the December number, Gen. Low Wallace wrote an account of the battle of Shiloh and I thought it was very fair and considerate, considering that he was a Federal general. I believed him to be sincere. And now comes Gen. Grant at the last number and says that he is alive today he could say it to all of us for we are the slaves of prejudice. I was thinking about this while reading the last number of The Century. In the December number, Gen. Low Wallace wrote an account of the battle of Shiloh and I thought it was very fair and considerate, considering that he was a Federal general. I believed him to be sincere. And now comes Gen. Grant at the last number and says that he is alive today he could say it to all of us for we are the slaves of prejudice. I was thinking about this while reading the last number of The Century. In the December number, Gen. Low Wallace wrote an account of the battle of Shiloh and I thought it was very fair and considerate, considering that he was a Federal general. I believed him to be sincere. And now comes Gen. Grant at the last number and says that he is alive today he could say it to all of us for we are the slaves of prejudice. I was thinking about this while reading the last number of The Century. In the December number, Gen. Low Wallace wrote an account of the battle of Shiloh and I thought it was very fair and considerate, considering that he was a Federal general. I believed him to be sincere. And now comes Gen. Grant at the last number and says that he is alive today he could say it to all of us for we are the slaves of prejudice. I was thinking about this while reading the last number of The Century. In the December number, Gen. Low Wallace wrote an account of the battle of Shiloh and I thought it was very fair and considerate, considering that he was a Federal general. I believed him to be sincere. And now comes Gen. Grant at the last number and says that he is alive today he could say it to all of us for we are the slaves of prejudice. I was thinking about this while reading the last number of The Century. In the December number, Gen. Low Wallace wrote an account of the battle of Shiloh and I thought it was very fair and considerate, considering that he was a Federal general. I believed him to be sincere. And now comes Gen. Grant at the last number and says that he is alive today he could say it to all of us for we are the slaves of prejudice. I was thinking about this while reading the last number of The Century. In the December number, Gen. Low Wallace wrote an account of the battle of Shiloh and I thought it was very fair and considerate, considering that he was a Federal general. I believed him to be sincere. And now comes Gen. Grant at the last number and says that he is alive today he could say it to all of us for we are the slaves of prejudice. I was thinking about this while reading the last number of The Century. In the December number, Gen. Low Wallace wrote an account of the battle of Shiloh and I thought it was very fair and considerate, considering that he was a Federal general. I believed him to be sincere. And now comes Gen. Grant at the last number and says that he is alive today he could say it to all of us for we are the slaves of prejudice. I was thinking about this while reading the last number of The Century. In the December number, Gen. Low Wallace wrote an account of the battle of Shiloh and I thought it was very fair and considerate, considering that he was a Federal general. I believed him to be sincere. And now comes Gen. Grant at the last number and says that he is alive today he could say it to all of us for we are the slaves of prejudice. I was thinking about this while reading the last number of The Century. In the December number, Gen. Low Wallace wrote an account of the battle of Shiloh and I thought it was very fair and considerate, considering that he was a Federal general. I believed him to be sincere. And now comes Gen. Grant at the last number and says that he is alive today he could say it to all of us for we are the slaves of prejudice. I was thinking about this while reading the last number of The Century. In the December number, Gen. Low Wallace wrote an account of the battle of Shiloh and I thought it was very fair and considerate, considering that he was a Federal general. I believed him to be sincere. And now comes Gen. Grant at the last number and says that he is alive today he could say it to all of us for we are the slaves of prejudice. I was thinking about this while reading the last number of The Century. In the December number, Gen. Low Wallace wrote an account of the battle of Shiloh and I thought it was very fair and considerate, considering that he was a Federal general. I believed him to be sincere. And now comes Gen. Grant at the last number and says that he is alive today he could say it to all of us for we are the slaves of prejudice. I was thinking about this while reading the last number of The Century. In the December number, Gen. Low Wallace wrote an account of the battle of Shiloh and I thought it was very fair and considerate, considering that he was a Federal general. I believed him to be sincere. And now comes Gen. Grant at the last number and says that he is alive today he could say it to all of us for we are the slaves of prejudice. I was thinking about this while reading the last number of The Century. In the December number, Gen. Low Wallace wrote an account of the battle of Shiloh and I thought it was very fair and considerate, considering that he was a Federal general. I believed him to be sincere. And now comes Gen. Grant at the last number and says that he is alive today he could say it to all of us for we are the slaves of prejudice. I was thinking about this while reading the last number of The Century. In the December number, Gen. Low Wallace wrote an account of the battle of Shiloh and I thought it was very fair and considerate, considering that he was a Federal general. I believed him to be sincere. And now comes Gen. Grant at the last number and says that he is alive today he could say it to all of us for we are the slaves of prejudice. I was thinking about this while reading the last number of The Century. In the December number, Gen. Low Wallace wrote an account of the battle of Shiloh and I thought it was very fair and considerate, considering that he was a Federal general. I believed him to be sincere. And now comes Gen. Grant at the last number and says that he is alive today he could say it to all of us for we are the slaves of prejudice. I was thinking about this while reading the last number of The Century. In the December number, Gen. Low Wallace wrote an account of the battle of Shiloh and I thought it was very fair and considerate, considering that he was a Federal general. I believed him to be sincere. And now comes Gen. Grant at the last number and says that he is alive today he could say it to all of us for we are the slaves of prejudice. I was thinking about this while reading the last number of The Century. In the December number, Gen. Low Wallace wrote an account of the battle of Shiloh and I thought it was very fair and considerate, considering that he was a Federal general. I believed him to be sincere. And now comes Gen. Grant at the last number and says that he is alive today he could say it to all of us for we are the slaves of prejudice. I was thinking about this while reading the last number of The Century. In the December number, Gen. Low Wallace wrote an account of the battle of Shiloh and I thought it was very fair and considerate, considering that he was a Federal general. I believed him to be sincere. And now comes Gen. Grant at the last number and says that he is alive today he could say it to all of us for we are the slaves of prejudice. I was thinking about this while reading the last number of The Century. In the December number, Gen. Low Wallace wrote an account of the battle of Shiloh and I thought it was very fair and considerate, considering that he was a Federal general. I believed him to be sincere. And now comes Gen. Grant at the last number and says that he is alive today he could say it to all of us for we are the slaves of prejudice. I was thinking about this while reading the last number of The Century. In the December number, Gen. Low Wallace wrote an account of the battle of Shiloh and I thought it was very fair and considerate, considering that he was a Federal general. I believed him to be sincere. And now comes Gen. Grant at the last number and says that he is alive today he could say it to all of us for we are the slaves of prejudice. I was thinking about this while reading the last number of The Century. In the December number, Gen. Low Wallace wrote an account of the battle of Shiloh and I thought it was very fair and considerate, considering that he was a Federal general. I believed him to be sincere. And now comes Gen. Grant at the last number and says that he is alive today he could say it to all of us for we are the slaves of prejudice. I was thinking about this while reading the last number of The Century. In the December number, Gen. Low Wallace wrote an account of the battle of Shiloh and I thought it was very fair and considerate, considering that he was a Federal general. I believed him to be sincere. And now comes Gen. Grant at the last number and says that he is alive today he could say it to all of us for we are the slaves of prejudice. I was thinking about this while reading the last number of The Century. In the December number, Gen. Low Wallace wrote an account of the battle of Shiloh and I thought it was very fair and considerate, considering that he was a Federal general. I believed him to be sincere. And now comes Gen. Grant at the last number and says that he is alive today he could say it to all of us for we are the slaves of prejudice. I was thinking about this while reading the last number of The Century. In the December number, Gen. Low Wallace wrote an account of the battle of Shiloh and I thought it was very fair and considerate, considering that he was a Federal general. I believed him to be sincere. And now comes Gen. Grant at the last number and says that he is alive today he could say it to all of us for we are the slaves of prejudice. I was thinking about this while reading the last number of The Century. In the December number, Gen. Low Wallace wrote an account of the battle of Shiloh and I thought it was very fair and considerate, considering that he was a Federal general. I believed him to be sincere. And now comes Gen. Grant at the last number and says that he is alive today he could say it to all of us for we are the slaves of prejudice. I was thinking about this while reading the last number of The Century. In the December number, Gen. Low Wallace wrote an account of the battle of Shiloh and I thought it was very fair and considerate, considering that he was a Federal general. I believed him to be sincere. And now comes Gen. Grant at the last number and says that he is alive today he could say it to all of us for we are the slaves of prejudice. I was thinking about this while reading the last number of The Century. In the December number, Gen. Low Wallace wrote an account of the battle of Shiloh and I thought it was very fair and considerate, considering that he was a Federal general. I believed him to be sincere. And now comes Gen. Grant at the last number and says that he is alive today he could say it to all of us for we are the slaves of prejudice. I was thinking about this while reading the last number of The Century. In the December number, Gen. Low Wallace wrote an account of the battle of Shiloh and I thought it was very fair and considerate, considering that he was a Federal general. I believed him to be sincere. And now comes Gen. Grant at the last number and says that he is alive today he could say it to all of us for we are the slaves of prejudice. I was thinking about this while reading the last number of The Century. In the December number, Gen. Low Wallace wrote an account of the battle of Shiloh and I thought it was very fair and considerate, considering that he was a Federal general. I believed him to be sincere. And now comes Gen. Grant at the last number and says that he is alive today he could say it to all of us for we are the slaves of prejudice. I was thinking about this while reading the last number of The Century. In the December number, Gen. Low Wallace wrote an account of the battle of Shiloh and I thought it was very fair and considerate, considering that he was a Federal general. I believed him to be sincere. And now comes Gen. Grant at the last number and says that he is alive today he could say it to all of us for we are the slaves of prejudice. I was thinking about this while reading the last number of The Century. In the December number, Gen. Low Wallace wrote an account of the battle of Shiloh and I thought it was very fair and considerate, considering that he was a Federal general. I believed him to be sincere. And now comes Gen. Grant at the last number and says that he is alive today he could say it to all of us for we are the slaves of prejudice. I was thinking about this while reading the last number of The Century. In the December number, Gen. Low Wallace wrote an account of the battle of Shiloh and I thought it was very fair and considerate, considering that he was a Federal general. I believed him to be sincere. And now comes Gen. Grant at the last number and says that he is alive today he could say it to all of us for we are the slaves of prejudice. I was thinking about this while reading the last number of The Century. In the December number, Gen. Low Wallace wrote an account of the battle of Shiloh and I thought it was very fair and considerate, considering that he was a Federal general. I believed him to be sincere. And now comes Gen. Grant at the last number and says that he is alive today he could say it to all of us for we are the slaves of prejudice. I was thinking about this while reading the last number of The Century. In the December number, Gen. Low Wallace wrote an account of the battle of Shiloh and I thought it was very fair and considerate, considering that he was a Federal general. I believed him to be sincere. And now comes Gen. Grant at the last number and says that he is alive today he could say it to all of us for we are the slaves of prejudice. I was thinking about this while reading the last number of The Century. In the December number, Gen. Low Wallace wrote an account of the battle of Shiloh and I thought it was very fair and considerate, considering that he was a Federal general. I believed him to be sincere. And now comes Gen. Grant at the last number and says that he is alive today he could say it to all of us for we are the slaves of prejudice. I was thinking about this while reading the last number of The Century. In the December number, Gen. Low Wallace wrote an account of the battle of Shiloh and I thought it was very fair and considerate, considering that he was a Federal general. I believed him to be sincere. And now comes Gen. Grant at the last number and says that he is alive today he could say it to all of us for we are the slaves of prejudice. I was thinking about this while reading the last number of The Century. In the December number, Gen. Low Wallace wrote an account of the battle of Shiloh and I thought it was very fair and considerate, considering that he was a Federal general. I believed him to be sincere. And now comes Gen. Grant at the last number and says that he is alive today he could say it to all of us for we are the slaves of prejudice. I was thinking about this while reading the last number of The Century. In the December number, Gen. Low Wallace wrote an account of the battle of Shiloh and I thought it was very fair and considerate, considering that he was a Federal general. I believed him to be sincere. And now comes Gen. Grant at the last number and says that he is alive today he could say it to all of us for we are the slaves of prejudice. I was thinking about this while reading the last number of The Century. In the December number, Gen. Low Wallace wrote an account of the battle of Shiloh and I thought it was very fair and considerate, considering that he was a Federal general. I believed him to be sincere. And now comes Gen. Grant at the last number and says that he is alive today he could say it to all of us for we are the slaves of prejudice. I was thinking about this while reading the last number of The Century. In the December number, Gen. Low Wallace wrote an account of the battle of Shiloh and I thought it was very fair and considerate, considering that he was a Federal general. I believed him to be sincere. And now comes Gen. Grant at the last number and says that he is alive today he could say it to all of us for we are the slaves of prejudice. I was thinking about this while reading the last number of The Century. In the December number, Gen. Low Wallace wrote an account of the battle of Shiloh and I thought it was very fair and considerate, considering that he was a Federal general. I believed him to be sincere. And now comes Gen. Grant at the last number and says that he is alive today he could say it to all of us for we are the slaves of prejudice. I was thinking about this while reading the last number of The Century. In the December number, Gen. Low Wallace wrote an account of the battle of Shiloh and I thought it was very fair and considerate, considering that he was a Federal general. I believed him to be sincere. And now comes Gen. Grant at the last number and says that he is alive today he could say it to all of us for we are the slaves of prejudice. I was thinking about this while reading the last number of The Century. In the December number, Gen. Low Wallace wrote an account of the battle of Shiloh and I thought it was very fair and considerate, considering that he was a Federal general. I believed him to be sincere. And now comes Gen. Grant at the last number and says that he is alive today he could say it to all of us for we are the slaves of prejudice. I was thinking about this while reading the last number of The Century. In the December number, Gen. Low Wallace wrote an account of the battle of Shiloh and I thought it was very fair and considerate, considering that he was a Federal general. I believed him to be sincere. And now comes Gen. Grant at the last number and says that he is alive today he could say it to all of us for we are the slaves of prejudice. I was thinking about this while reading the last number of The Century. In the December number, Gen. Low Wallace wrote an account of the battle of Shiloh and I thought it was very fair and considerate, considering that he was a Federal general. I believed him to be sincere. And now comes Gen. Grant at the last number and says that he is alive today he could say it to all of us for we are the slaves of prejudice. I was thinking about this while reading the last number of The Century. In the December number, Gen. Low Wallace wrote an account of the battle of Shiloh and I thought it was very fair and considerate, considering that he was a Federal general. I believed him to be sincere. And now comes Gen. Grant at the last number and says that he is alive today he could say it to all of us for we are the slaves of prejudice. I was thinking about this while reading the last number of The Century. In the December number, Gen. Low Wallace wrote an account of the battle of Shiloh and I thought it was very fair and considerate, considering that he was a Federal general. I believed him to be sincere. And now comes Gen. Grant at the last number and says that he is alive today he could say it to all of us for we are the slaves of prejudice. I was thinking about this while reading the last number of The Century. In the December number, Gen. Low Wallace wrote an account of the battle of Shiloh and I thought it was very fair and considerate, considering that he was a Federal general. I believed him to be sincere. And now comes Gen. Grant at the last number and says that he is alive today he could say it to all of us for we are the slaves of prejudice. I was thinking about this while reading the last number of The Century. In the December number, Gen. Low Wallace wrote an account of the battle of Shiloh and I thought it was very fair and considerate, considering that he was a Federal general. I believed him to be sincere. And now comes Gen. Grant at the last number and says that he is alive today he could say it to all of us for we are the slaves of prejudice. I was thinking about this while reading the last number of The Century. In the December number, Gen. Low Wallace wrote an account of the battle of Shiloh and I thought it was very fair and considerate, considering that he was a Federal general. I believed him to be sincere. And now comes Gen. Grant at the last number and says that he is alive today he could say it to all of us for we are the slaves of prejudice. I was thinking about this while reading the last number of The Century. In the December number, Gen. Low Wallace wrote an account of the battle of Shiloh and I thought it was very fair and considerate, considering that he was a Federal general. I believed him to be sincere. And now comes Gen. Grant at the last number and says that he is alive today he could say it to all of us for we are the slaves of prejudice. I was thinking about this while reading the last number of The Century. In the December number, Gen. Low Wallace wrote an account of the battle of Shiloh and I thought it was very fair and considerate, considering that he was a Federal general. I believed him to be sincere. And now comes Gen. Grant at the last number and says that he is alive today he could say it to all of us for we are the slaves of prejudice. I was thinking about this while reading the last number of The Century. In the December number, Gen. Low Wallace wrote an account of the battle of Shiloh and I thought it was very fair and considerate, considering that he was a Federal general. I believed him to be sincere. And now comes Gen. Grant at the last number and says that he is alive today he could say it to all of us for we are the slaves of prejudice. I was thinking about this while reading the last number of The Century. In the December number, Gen. Low Wallace wrote an account of the battle of Shiloh and I thought it was very fair and considerate, considering that he was a Federal general. I believed him to be sincere. And now comes Gen. Grant at the last number and says that he is alive today he could say it to all of us for we are the slaves of prejudice. I was thinking about this while reading the last number of The Century. In the December number, Gen. Low Wallace wrote an account of the battle of Shiloh and I thought it was very fair and considerate, considering that he was a Federal general. I believed him to be sincere. And now comes Gen. Grant at the last number and says that he is alive today he could say it to all of us for we are the slaves of prejudice. I was thinking about this while reading the last number of The Century. In the December number, Gen. Low Wallace wrote an account of the battle of Shiloh and I thought it was very fair and considerate, considering that he was a Federal general. I believed him to be sincere. And now comes Gen.